

Memberships and Subscriptions

According to BYU Policy, "University funds may be used to pay for institutional, departmental, or individual memberships, dues, professional journals, or other subscriptions that will directly benefit the university in its academic and business relationships and responsibilities, or promote professional competence in carrying out teaching, research, and other employment-related duties."- <https://policy.byu.edu/view/index.php?p=83>

In the Psychology Department, every year, each faculty member is allowed to use the department credit card to pay for two memberships or subscriptions or one of each. If you want to have more memberships or subscriptions than two, you will need to use your own research account to pay for it.
