

Grad Students

From time-to-time, you will be asked if you want to work with a grad student during their graduate program work. This means that the admissions committee think that the interests of the grad student would work well with your research areas and interests. Once everything is arranged, the student can work up to 15 hours per week either as a research or teaching assistant.